A clarion is a medieval trumpet that had clear, shrill tones. Trumpets were often used to get people's attention when making announcements. We are also using "clarion" in the context of making announcements, as well as being thought-provoking when sharing our information and opinions with those people who are interested in new investment ideas.

Topic: Trick-Or-Treat

Hallowe'en is fast approaching. This annual holiday is celebrated every October 31. It had its roots in Europe and came to North America with the Irish immigrants when they were escaping the Great Famine of the 1840s. The day features the colours orange and black, symbols like the jack-o'-lantern, and kids trick-or-treating.

So, what is this year's "Trick" and what the "Treat"?

The Trick, we think, was the maudlin fear of a double-dip recession, and the consequent move, almost stampede, by investors into bonds. Bond prices now look substantially over-priced, noted economists' viewpoints notwithstanding. Even if they are not considered over-valued, the upside potential seems so much less than the downside risk. Also, current bond prices do not reflect the view held in many quarters, this one included that, as a result of the bloated stimulus programs with more possibly to come, inflation in the long-run has nowhere to go but up. We hate to use, that is, mis-use or over-use the word "bubble", but there is increasing literature circulating that we are in or approaching a "Bond Bubble". So, Beware!

The Treat, we think, is the slowly-emerging recovery of the uranium industry. Okay, we know, we used uranium as last year's Treat. And here we are again. But we promoted our positive opinion on uranium throughout this past year on many occasions in the Clarion. Finally, it looks like our prognostications are coming true.

The price of U<sub>3</sub>O<sub>8</sub> is slowly rising. From a 2010 low of US$40.25/lb., the current spot price is US$52.00/lb (October 25) according to The Ux Consulting Company. This is the first time north of 50 in months!

The all-time high was reached in May 2007 at US$138.00/lb, which represented a "bubble". (There's that word again!). But the price went into free-fall shortly after. As a result, until recently, uranium and uranium stocks were pretty much ignored. Uranium stocks are now on the move upwards. With a stress on "long-term", we think that it is certainly not too late to climb aboard the uranium train.

Stock-of-the-Week

Groundstar Resources Limited (GSA: TSX-V)

Groundstar Resources Limited is a Calgary-based junior oil and gas company actively pursuing international exploration and production opportunities. The Company currently has interests in several prospective oil and gas properties in the Middle East (Iraq), North Africa (Egypt), and South America (Guyana).

The global hunt for the remaining untapped reserves of conventional crude oil is increasing the level of exploration interest in the so-called "frontier" regions. Characterized by challenging logistics and geology, and comparatively high geo-political risks, these jurisdictions nevertheless have the potential to offer high-impact discoveries that justify these risks. With its seasoned management, access to capital, information technology, and services, Groundstar Resources has secured a number of international exploration opportunities that fit this description. Intensifying drilling activity during the final calendar quarter of 2010, including initial results from a current drilling well in Kurdistan, provide a number of catalysts that should support a more positive assessment of the Company's shares.

Groundstar's three key projects include: (1) the Qara Dagh-1 well in the Kurdistan region of Iraq (6% interest); (2) the West Kom Ombo Block in Upper Egypt (70% interest); and (3) the Apoteri K2 well in Guyana (10% interest).

All three of Groundstar's exploration interests are focused on high-impact light oil potential. The Qara Dagh Block in Kurdistan, with a total of seven prospective formations, is estimated to contain 450 million barrels of ultimately recoverable oil. The West Kom Ombo Block could hold an estimated 570 million barrels of recoverable reserves. The Company's Takutu exploration block in Guyana has been estimated to hold a gross mean recoverable reserve of 127 million barrels.

Despite holding relative small property interests on a percentage basis, Groundstar nevertheless has exploration exposure to a total of eight prospective drilling locations, three of which will be operating during the fourth quarter of 2010 with gross prospective "Best Estimate" reserves in excess of 1.1 billion barrels of light crude oil, and an exploration land inventory just under 10 million acres. The Company has successfully negotiated cost-carrying terms with partners on two of its three exploration properties, thus limiting its exploration spending obligation to just $2.76 million, an amount that is currently fully funded.
