Note: This index is updated daily, and our proprietary charts are made available to our paid subscribers only.

Not all the stocks in this index are currently included in our Daily coverage. This list is subject to change at any time.

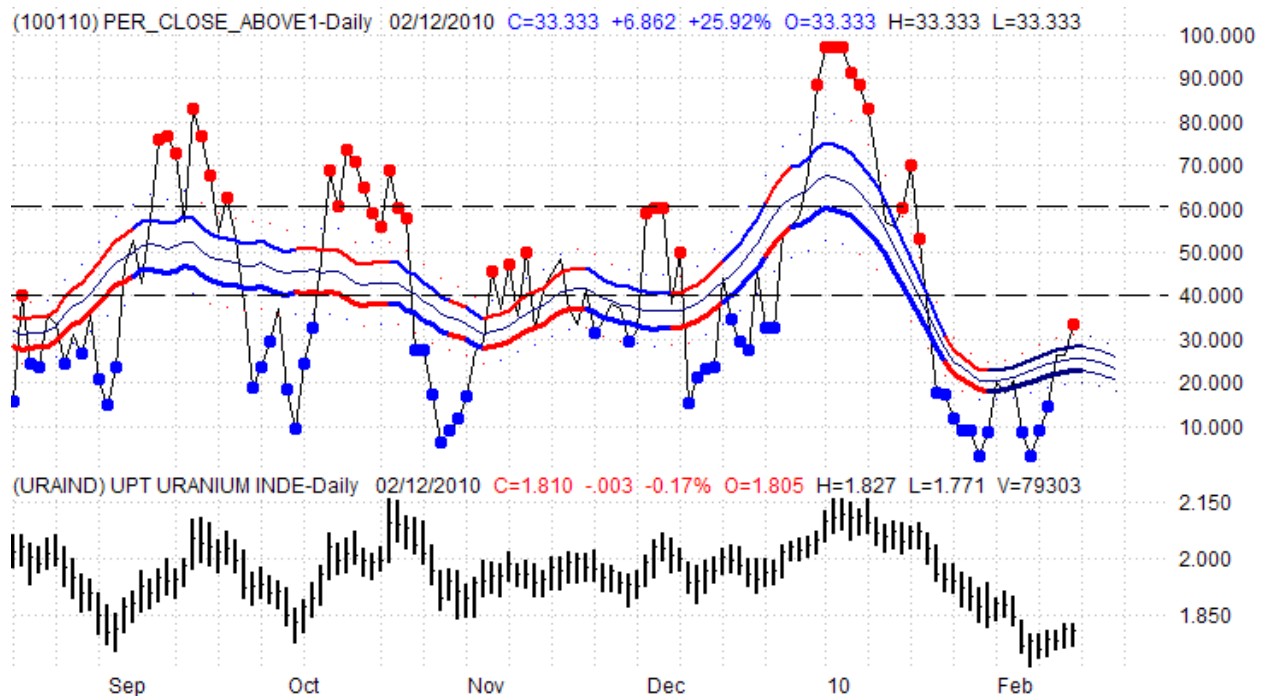

The following chart, which is also reproduced in our weekly Stock Market Timing report, shows the percentage of uranium stocks trading above their 10-day moving average.

Anytime 60% or more of the stocks in the database trade above their 10-day moving average, the market is considered overbought, and a short-term pullback is expected.

Anytime less than 40% of the stocks in the database trade above their 10-day moving average, the market is considered oversold short-term, and a reversal move higher is expected.

COMMENT: As shown, the Uranium Stocks index is below 40%, and has moved up from overly-depressed levels of less than 10%.
